

Favorite thing to do?

Marcetta has always loved having company over for visits, and loves music and gardening. Her daughter can remember a time she woke up and heard her mother singing happily in her garden as she pulled weeds. Marcetta also loved word games as she has always been a great speller. Marcetta loved to travel with her family and was a very creative cake baker. She would ask her grandkids what sort of cake they would like for their birthday. Her husband would draw the cake out and she would create the exact cake they would like.

Secret to longevity?
"Always look on the bright side, and smile through life. Eating healthy also helps."

Marcetta has two daughters - Marsha and Marilyn, four grandchildren and five great-grandkids. Marcetta never thought it was too late to learn something new as she learned how to ride a bicycle in her 50's. Something that might surprise many people is that she never pumped her own gas into her car. "Back in the good old days, the attendants would do it for you, and after those days, my husband was so sweet he always made sure my car had gas for me to drive."
